Subject: Tips to Write a Romantic Letter

Dear XYZ,

WF5CT (09-20-2010)

I am writing this letter to you to explain in brief on how to go about writing a good romantic letter. Keep the language of the letter very sweet and polite. Express your feelings in the letter. You can make use of quotes in your letter or if you want to make the letter more special you can write your feelings in a poetic style. Do not write the letter as if you have copied the text from somewhere else. Let all the feelings come out of your heart. Keep the letter very precise and to the point. The letter should be written in romantic way and the one reading should just go on reading it. All these aspects will indeed help you write a good romantic letter.

Thanking You,

Yours truly,

Name and Signature

I can't say the same for the kids, as her mismanagement led the state to take over the school to get good grades, went to university, studied hard, graduated, got a series of better and better jobs, and finally transferred across as an international manager under an L1-A visa (executive management). After a year my lawyer submitted my green card paperwork, and a few months later I was approved. Your friends experience may differ - there are MANY ways of ending up with a green card - hard work, education, and business success is one of the easiest, but not the only way. You can be lucky (diversity lottery), rich (investment), talented (internationally recognised artists, athletes and scientists), or have family in the USA. ALL these options require you to either pay a lawyer, or actually learn the process yourself. Your friend should start by obtaining a visa which allows them to legally reside and work in the USA - that's the first step in the process. Simply "wanting to come to the USA" isn't enough - it's a start.
